

Landon Prepares His Labor Day Speech As Roosevelt Trip Ends

Republican Presidential Nominee Works on Labor Day Message and Awaits Political Trends in Campaign Over Week-End.

NATIONALISM

Topeka, Kas., Sept. 5 (AP).—Gov. Alf M. Landon worked today on a Labor Day speech and proclamation, awaited by observers for possible new trends in the presidential campaign.

The Republican nominee planned a quiet week-end before traveling to Wichita Monday for a brief talk to the American Legion state convention. But first, aides said, he intended to issue a proclamation setting aside that day for the traditional Labor Day observance.

Rain began falling while he was making a personal survey of drouth-blighted orchards and vineyards in northwestern Kansas but the governor said it was "too late" to help the apple crop.

Reduced Rates

Western railroad executives in Chicago advised the governor his request had been approved that reduced freight rates on drouth area livestock feeds apply on joint as well as single line shipments. They also asked more funds to the emergency rate list.

Landon indicated he probably would go to Bonner Springs Sunday for a visit with his friend and adviser, Lacy Haynes, before going to Kansas City to board a night train for Wichita.

En route home from Des Moines, the governor visited Ed Howe, famed Atchison editor and "sage of Potato Hill," who told him he had been "overworked by advisers" and that the election was "settled now" in his favor.

"That's certainly good news," Landon rejoined with a smile. Tired from a two-day motor trip to Des Moines, Governor Landon refused early last night and aides refused to disturb him with word from San Francisco that former President Herbert Hoover had announced he would campaign actively for Landon.

To Indianapolis

Aboard Roosevelt train en route to Indianapolis, Sept. 5 (AP).—After declaring the nation is becoming "nationalistic in the best sense of the word" because it realizes economic conditions in one section affect those in other areas, President Roosevelt headed toward Indianapolis today for the windup of his 5,000 mile "first hand" inspection of drouth conditions.

He was due in the Indiana city in the forenoon. After a motor inspection trip, he arranged to confer at the Athletic Club with the governors and senators from Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky. After luncheon at the club he planned to start for Washington, where he was due to arrive tomorrow morning.

From the White House tomorrow he will broadcast a summation of his impressions on a trip that will have embraced conferences with governors of 17 states. He also will make an announcement then on the status of re-employment by private industry and possibly means to stimulate transfer of labor from relief rolls.

Sound Credit

In addresses in Springfield, Ill., yesterday, the President spoke of "integrated economy" and declared the credit of the United States was on a "sounder basis" than ever before in history.

Facing a crowd on the lawn of Gov. Henry Horner's executive mansion, the chief executive asserted drouths could not be prevented, but farm economy could be so adjusted as to conserve water and improve the soil so future rainless periods would result in less suffering.

Declaring this call for "planning" to raise farm purchasing power, he said: "In the same way, if the people in the cities can be kept busy with plenty of work at better wages—not food wages but better wages—it means that they will have more money to buy beef and pork and lots of other things."

"So you see that we have what has been called integrated economy—an economy that ties in every part of the nation. It ties in the east with the middle west and the middle west with the far west. It ties in the south with the south because, for example, if the southern cotton farmer gets a good crop and gets a decent price for his crop, he will be able to buy a whole lot of things that are manufactured in the state of Illinois."

Nationalistic Theme
"The country is becoming conscious of this. The country is becoming nationalistic in the best sense of the word and not in the exclusive sense of the word."

"We don't want to build a wall around ourselves and have no trade with any other nation in the world. What we are getting is a national feeling in that we are appreciative in each section the problems of all the other sections."

Aged Man Assured Of His Rights in Action Over Relief

Charles E. Ballard of Hancock Center, Greene county, has a great admiration for Attorney Andrew J. Cook of this city and as a consequence probably will have Mr. Cook to defend an action in supreme court. Mr. Ballard, an aged resident of Hancock Center, appeared in Supreme Court Friday in person to defend an action brought under the PWA provisions whereby title to property is taken by the county Welfare Administration to reimburse the county for relief given.

Mr. Ballard, an aged man with a long white flowing hair beard, appeared to argue his own case but asked the court to assign counsel to him so that his "Constitutional rights" might be protected. He presented a set of papers which he had prepared himself and G. W. Speenburgh appeared in opposition.

"Under Article I, Section 1, of the State Constitution, they can't take property away without a party having his day in court," said Mr. Ballard to the court in asking that he be given an opportunity to be heard. "I don't want to win if I am not entitled to," said the aged man as he asked the court to appoint an attorney to present his case.

Later after the matter had been discussed and Mr. Ballard had been assured by Justice Schirick that his rights would be protected by the court and that an attorney would be assigned to him, Mr. Ballard left the court room but very timidly returned again and conversed with Deputy County Clerk Charles O'Connor.

"Is there something else you want to say Mr. Ballard?" asked Justice Schirick.

"Well, if I am not out of order I would like to make a suggestion as to the assignment of an attorney," said the gray bearded old man.

"Go right ahead, Mr. Ballard," said the judge.

"Well, I would like to suggest the name of Mr. Cook. I have the greatest admiration for Mr. Cook and if I may I would like to suggest his name," said Mr. Ballard.

"Fine," said Justice Schirick. "You shall have Mr. Cook if I assign counsel."

Mr. Ballard said he had once possessed considerable property but had been forced to apply for relief and an action was now being taken to take title to his property. He said he believed before such action was taken he was entitled to have his day in court and he consequently appeared in opposition to the application before the court. Making no claim as a lawyer, Mr. Ballard had prepared answering papers which appeared to be quite complete for a layman.

The court was told that he had no means of employing counsel and he asked the court to appoint an attorney to protect his rights.

As he walked out of the court he inquired very politely: "Is that all today Judge?" and Justice Schirick replied, "Yes, all for today."

Irun, Spain, Sept. 5.—Government resistance in the ruined city of Irun ended today after rebel forces had driven off a desperate counter-attack by government militiamen.

Rebels were complete masters of the town by early afternoon. Cleanup squads stalked among the ruins hurling hand grenades at a few individual government militiamen who refused to flee with their comrades.

Fascist fighting men walked over the bodies of 10 black-shirted government militiamen on the approach to the international bridge into Hendaye.

The government men had recaptured the bridgehead earlier only to be counter-attacked by a relentless rebel barrage.

On the bridge itself were the bodies of three other government militiamen. The victorious rebels posted a guard on the frontier and closed the Spanish entrance to the bridge to prevent government defenders still in Spain from fleeing into France.

Desperate government defenders, who staged a daring counter-attack against victorious rebels, were driven from the international bridge today by a vicious Fascist barrage.

Scorching Fire
Rebel recruits massed their forces before the Spanish approach to the international span and laid down a scorching rain of machine gun fire on the bridgehead.

The rebel attack came under cover of heavy artillery fire from Fascist field guns. Bending low to avoid snipers, Carlist recruit converged on the bridge from two directions, down the streets through the flames, across city and through cornfields along the outskirts.

The two forces met on the Spanish in sharp hand-to-hand fighting. Superior numbers gave the rebels the advantage and they swarmed to the bridge sweeping the government defenders before them.

Three of the Socialist forces, who had held the approach throughout the night, were left dead at the scene of the fighting together with five wounded. Thirty-five more fled across the 100-foot river to safety on French territory.

Ten anarchists, who had joined the militiamen in the bloody defense of the bridge, died in the hall of bullets.

Several rebel shells fell near the French customs house at Hendaye and others blew houses on the Irun side to bits.

The battle started when 200 Socialists, who had fled before a fierce rebel attack yesterday, returned to seize the Spanish approach to the international bridge from Irun to Hendaye.

Hundreds Flee

Hundreds of others crossed the Bidasoa river in boats to Fuenterrabia and converged on Irun before the rebels consolidated their positions in the war-torn city from which they had been driven by flames.

The government soldiers engaged the rebels in a fierce machine gun battle at the bridge head.

The arrival of two carloads of munitions from Barcelona encouraged the government soldiers to return to battle.

The railroad cars of war material were sent from Hendaye station to a place opposite the bridge where they were opened by militiamen controlling the international span.

An international convention between France and Spain by which the Spanish use the railroad from Barcelona through Hendaye permitted the delivery of the munitions. Spain, itself, does not operate a parallel line in the northern section.

The rebel advance guard surrounded Irun in an apparent endeavor to crush government resistance by a decisive attack.

Surrounding the Fascist columns moving into Irun for an advance on San Sebastian, the Socialist forces seized the bridge head in a quick advance through the shell-scarred area.

War Made Purpose.

Madrid, Sept. 5.—The reorganized Spanish government under the leadership of Premier Francisco Largo Caballero, threw its entire official force today behind its troops fighting the rebels.

Justice Schirick Orders The Artificial Lake at Fleischmanns Drained

Judge Misner, the Receiver, Drained the Lake on Order of the Conservation Department, But Someone Closed the Gates.

COURT ACTION

Fleischmanns will have no artificial lake at least for the time being if the order of Justice Harry E. Schirick is complied with by Receiver Judge H. Winfield Misner of Pine Hill. Mr. Misner, who was appointed receiver in an action brought by the Kingston Trust Company against Ethel Silverman and others, has been directed by the State Conservation Department to drain the water from the lake at the property because the dam is unsafe. The owners, Steinhart, and the operators of the place, the New England Lake Corporation object to the draining of the dam because it would damage their summer boarding business. Mr. Misner in compliance with the order of the state did open the gates last week and drained the pond. Later someone closed the gates and the lake is again filled.

Mr. Misner came into supreme court Friday and asked to be relieved as receiver of the property in the mortgage foreclosure action brought by the Kingston Trust Company because he did not wish to become involved in any personal litigation with the owners or operators of the property because of the dispute whether the pond should be drained as directed. He alleged through his counsel N. LeVan Haver, that if he complied with the order of the conservation commission and drained the pond then the owners and operators would bring action against him and he would become involved in expensive litigation and consequently he sought to have the court relieve him of his responsibility.

Coming at the Labor Day season when all summer boarding houses are expecting large crowds the draining of the pond probably would create much ill feeling.

The application for discharge of Judge Misner as receiver was made by Mr. Haver and Justice Schirick said that he would discharge the receiver provided his report was approved by the court.

"Judge, you are in charge of that property until you are discharged. I instruct you to let the water out of the dam, the dam is not safe," said Justice Schirick when Mr. Misner sought definite instructions as to what he should do in the battle which promises to be fiercely fought out in the courts.

In making application for the discharge of Judge Misner his attorney, N. LeVan Haver, said that the conservation department had notified Mr. Misner to drain the pond. This had been sent after the State Department of Public Works had made an examination of the dam which impounds water above the village of Fleischmanns and the dam had been found unsafe by the engineers. The order of the department was to drain the pond until proper repairs had been made to the dam and the dam inspected and found to be safe.

Mr. Misner in compliance with that order from the state department opened the gates and allowed the pond to drain. He claims he was threatened with bodily harm at the time he opened the gates and drained the pond but he carried out his duty as directed by the state and under the authority invested in him by the supreme court as receiver. Last week someone closed the gates and the pond is again full.

Max Herman appeared for the New England Lake Corporation and argued that Mr. Misner as receiver of the property in the foreclosure action had no authority to take possession from the owner at this stage of the proceeding and he held that the owner was entitled to possession. Last winter he said the pond had been drained by someone but the receiver at that time had allowed the dam to collect water for ice.

Moves to Discharge The Defendant from Jail, Open Default

A default judgment taken in Sullivan county court before Justice Bergan was attacked Friday in special term here when counsel for defendants moved to open the default and for the discharge of the defendant who is now in jail on a body execution.

Last May an inquest was taken in Sullivan county in an action against Roy Miller and Walter Miller. It arose out of an accident in which plaintiff was injured. No defense was made and an $8,000 judgment was rendered. When it was not satisfied a body execution was taken and Roy Miller was arrested and placed in jail for default. He secured an attorney and was released from jail. Later Walter Miller, the other defendant, was placed in jail under a body execution and is still there.

The application to Justice Schirick was for to open the judgment and for discharge of the defendant Walter Miller from jail.

In opposition to the motion it was argued that every opportunity had been given the defendants to appear and their counsel had been notified of the date of the trial. If the default is opened counsel for the plaintiff asked that the court reimburse plaintiff for the cost of the trial, witness fees and other expenses in connection with the inquest.

Decision reserved.

The natural advantages of the Catskill mountains in the vicinity of Phoenicia village were fully appreciated last winter by many skiers who came to the locality by car and by special "snow trains" which were run to the mountains from New York city and brought many enthusiasts of this growing popular winter sport. This coming winter those who come to Phoenicia and vicinity to enjoy the thrill of skiing will find the trails have been greatly improved and new trails added. The plan to make Phoenicia one of the most popular skiing centers of the east is rapidly taking form under the direction of the Phoenicia Ski Club and by winter the Catskills in the vicinity of Phoenicia will be able to boast of every type of ski slope and trail.

Monday under the direction of the Phoenicia Ski Club work was commenced on the new down mountain ski run on Romer mountain which has been laid out by Otto Schnobels, famous coach of the Dartmouth College ski team. It is expected that fully two-thirds of this two mile trail will be completed before snow falls.

Otto Schnobels has been spending the past week with his family at Kinsey's in Phoenicia. He came there as a guest of the Phoenicia Ski Club for the express purpose of laying out their new down mountain run on Romer Mountain. Mr. Schnobels was tremendously enthusiastic about this trail, claiming that when completed it will be far superior to the New England trails and will rank with the best in the country.

The new down mountain run upon which work is now underway is located on Romer mountain a mile east of Phoenicia on the James Van Valkenburgh farm. It will be two miles long starting from the top of Romer peak and descending from an altitude of 2,200 to 700 feet, or a fall of 1,500 feet in the two miles. As laid out by Mr. Schnobels it will have steep twist and turn known to skiers.

Some of its features are a heavy part more or less moderate, gradually increasing in difficulty as it advances up the mountain. There will be a great variety of turns and slopes with the smooth long straight drag which are dangerous to inexperienced skiers. In fact great effort was made by Mr. Schnobels to avoid some of the objectionable features of other down mountain courses. The trail will feature when completed, a chute, a funnel and many spectacular high speed turns and other delights of the more experienced skier.

Mr. Schnobels, who is familiarly known as Otto to everyone in the ski world, is the most experienced teacher and ski expert in this country, and the Phoenicia Club was very fortunate to be able to arrange for him to come there for a week to lay out the course.

The course will have a north-easterly exposure which will permit the snow to remain on the slopes until late in the spring, giving a long season and permitting skiing late in the season when the days have begun to lengthen.

Through the activities of the Phoenicia Ski Club last winter was the first season when any real effort was made to develop the ski area. The master of the S. S. Spaarndam reported he sighted a plane 300 miles from St. John's, Newfoundland, and about 1,200 miles from New York, Mrs. Markham's destination.

If the plane was hers, she could scarcely reach New York before 5 p. m. eastern standard time, 28 hours after she set out from Abingdon, England.

Aviation Experts Fear She Will Run Short of Gasoline Before Reaching New York City—Sighted at Newfoundland.

PLANE TO MEET HER

Coast Guard Sends Plane to Guide Her Down Atlantic Coast Line Toward Her Objective.

(Copyright, 1936, By Associated Press)
New York, Sept. 5.—Mrs. Beryl Markham, English society woman airplane pilot, apparently had conquered the North Atlantic on a flight from England today, but aviation experts feared she would run out of gasoline before reaching New York.

Her small (Percival Vega Gull) monoplane, powered with an engine of only 200 horsepower, was believed to have flown over Cape Race, Newfoundland, at 8:45 a. m. Eastern Standard Time, the Canadian press said.

Fuel Supply Low
Since the engine's fuel consumption was estimated at 10 imperial gallons an hour, only about 70 gallons could have remained at that time.

This amount was believed sufficient to carry the ship as far as Portland, Me., but scarcely any greater distance.

A Coast Guard plane took off from Salem, Mass., to serve as a guide down the eastern shore of North America to the woman who appeared to have made the first solo Atlantic crossing from east to west achieved by her sex.

Her navigation was accomplished without a radio and in bad weather. Mr. James H. Kimball, government meteorologist, said that if the report of her crossing was correct, "her performance is so remarkable it is almost incredible."

The blonde young flier, he said, must have encountered headwinds more than half the way across the ocean.

Experts estimated the plane's speed to Newfoundland, on the basis of reports of its sighting, was only 117 miles an hour, although the ship was designed with a cruising speed of 150 miles and top speed of 170.

The weather relented in mid-morning, along the coast. A strong northerly wind prevailed, giving impetus for the southward swing to the United States.

The Canadian press first reported Mrs. Markham over Renews, Newfoundland, at 8:35 a. m., flying extremely low and toward the west. Renews is on the southeast tip of Newfoundland.

The time of the report was 19 1/2 hours after the English society woman took off from Abingdon, England.

300 Miles at Sea

An hour and one-half earlier, the woman, who said she wanted to be the first to fly the Atlantic alone from east to west, had been reported apparently sighted nearly 300 miles at sea.

Spectators along the shore of Renews Harbor said the small airplane circled the bay, while its pilot apparently checked maps, then started on a straight line for Cape Race, 25 miles to the southwest.

Ten minutes later, persons at Cape Race said the plane had reached there. A few minutes later it flew over Brook Point.

Cape Race is 1,200 miles from New York by flying line.

The coast of Newfoundland was blanketed by heavy mist and rain.

Reserves Decision in Show Cause Action

On an order to show cause in the matter of Gilbert A. Avery of Hudson against W. K. Roland, the B. R. D. Corporation and others of Hudson argument was had Friday in Supreme Court here. The defendant corporation asked the court to issue an order vacating an order of attachment and asked for an affirmative judgment against the plaintiff and an injunction restraining him from going into business.

It was alleged the plaintiff sold his heating and refrigeration business to the corporation in 1934 for the sum of $11,000, receiving $6,000 and chattel mortgage for $5,000. The chattel mortgage was to be paid in monthly installments of $250. The payments were made for a time and until about $2,500 had been paid, according to counsel. Then they ceased.

The defendant corporation claims that at that time it was discovered the plaintiff was engaging in business which he had agreed not to re-enter and that payments were stopped for that reason. Plaintiff Avery brought an action in February to foreclose the mortgage and on August 27, 1935, the sheriff of Columbia county was instructed to seize the property of the corporation. A counter claim is entered by the defendants against the plaintiff alleging damages because of his re-entering business and the defendants allege they have been damaged to a greater extent than the amount of the payments due. Decision reserved.

There is a beautiful gown and veil awaiting some girl if she plans to be married amid the embowered beauties of the big city flower festival to be held in the Municipal Auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 15 and 16. Mrs. F. P. Luther, chairman in charge of the flower festival, said today that a Kingston merchant has offered a gown to the prospective bride and will also furnish a veil to be worn. The bridal bouquet has also been promised.

The flower festival promises to be a scene of unrivaled beauty during the days of the show, and if a bride and groom wish to have a wedding in a perfect setting they should get in touch with Mrs. Luther of 50 Down street so that arrangements may be made to make the wedding one of the big events of the social season.

In addition to the flower festival there will also be a baby parade and show, and prizes will be awarded to the children in the various classes. Entries for the show are being received and it is expected that there will be a number of children entered.

In the flower festival a silver medal will be awarded the person showing the greatest number of exhibits or taking the greatest number of blue ribbons.

The committee in charge of the patron list reports that it is meeting with great success and many of the residents of the city are becoming patrons of the festival. The proceeds from the festival are to be used to purchase playground equipment for the various city playgrounds.

Mrs. Makowsky Is Held for Shooting Near Whiteport

Kathleen Makowsky, 54, who lives near Whiteport on the old road leading to Williams Lake, was arrested Friday afternoon by Sergeant Cunningham and Troopers Rely, Elliott and Keefe, with Deputy Sheriff Vredenburg of the sheriff's office, and after arraignment before Justice Clyde L. Baxter of Rosendale was committed to the Ulster county jail on a charge of assault in the second degree. She is to have a hearing before Justice Baxter on Tuesday next.

It is charged that Mrs. Makowsky fired the shot that struck Harold Werker, 18, of New York, as he and several others were walking along the road Thursday. The bullet, which Werker said was apparently fired from some bushes nearby, grazed the young man's finger.

Troopers Rely and Elliott began an investigation of the shooting Thursday night and the other troopers joined them in further investigation Friday. Mrs. Makowsky's arrest resulted.

The officers say that Mrs. Makowsky admitted having fired a shot from a rifle, but denied having shot at anyone, claiming that she fired into the ground. She said that she had been bothered by people in the past and simply wanted to frighten people away from the premises.

A fully loaded .22 calibre Winchester rifle was found in the house and three police dogs also guarded the property. Mr. Makowsky was said to be in New York at the time of the alleged shooting.

Mayor Heiselman to Hold Public Hearing on New Theatre Law

Mayor C. J. Heiselman will hold a public hearing on Wednesday at noon at the city hall on the local law recently adopted by the Common Council. Under the provisions of this local law, which was adopted unanimously by the council, children will not have to be accompanied by an adult in order to be admitted to any of the theatres here, but each theatre must set aside a section of seats on the orchestra or main floor where the children will be seated. No adults will be allowed to sit in this reserved section which must be in charge of a licensed matron. Where children are accompanied by an adult they may sit anywhere in the theatre. The idea of having a certain section of seats set aside for the use of children exclusively is intended to make it more safe for children to attend the movies unaccompanied.

FOURKIDNEY BOYS ON MOVIES INJURED FRIVAT

Raymond Seeler, 15, and Erich Gerloff, 14, both of Poughkeepsie, are in the Kingston Hospital with injuries sustained when they lost their way while riding on their bicycles through Sargeant's Friday morning. Unfamiliar with the road the boys rode their bikes down the steep hill leading to the bannock colony on the creek and onto the darkness where they were unable to see the turn in the road at the foot of the hill and crashed into the stone wall at the foot of the hill. Seeler sustained a broken left leg and Gerloff a broken right ankle.

Labor Split Certain As C.I.O. Withdraws From Federation

Washington, Sept. 5 (AP)—The long-threatened split in the American Federation of Labor became an actuality today amid hints that suspended unions numbering about one-third of its 3,500,000 members would form a rival federation.

Ten unions, found guilty of "insurrection" defied the Federation executive council's order to leave the committee for industrial organization, and thus were subject to a suspension order.

There was some doubt as to whether this order technically became effective at midnight last night or midnight tonight. There was no doubt, however, that the ten unions intended to defy it.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, made his position clear yesterday afternoon. As far as he was concerned, he said, the order was effective at 3:33 p. m.—the minute he spoke.

"We are going to continue what we have been doing, namely, promoting organization in case unorganized industries," he said.

Lewis referred to the steel industry specifically and other mass production industries generally.

He and leaders of the nine other suspended unions think the only way the workers in mass production industries can be organized is through industrial unions to bring all the workers in each industry into one union, regardless of craft.

Long Attempts Made
For many years they tried to get the A. F. of L. to adopt this policy. But the A. F. of L. held to the policy of enrolling workers, with certain exceptions, into craft unions, the machinists into the machinists' union, etc.

Last fall, Lewis and his Industrial Union associates formed the Committee For Industrial Organization to promote industrial union campaigns in the steel, auto, rubber, textile and other industries.

The Lewis faction defied the summons. They said the council had no authority to try them. The trial went on, however, and the Lewis unions were found guilty.

Today's suspension does not necessarily mean expulsion. But labor men generally agreed it was tantamount to expulsion. Craft union leaders propose to ask the federation's convention in November to expel the Lewis faction. Suspension will keep the Lewis unions from voting. The craft unionists thus can more readily muster the two-thirds vote necessary for expulsion.

"Rainbows" of Sun Shown in Pictures

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 5 (AP)—Rainbows of the sun, arches of fire 100,000 miles high and 200,000 long, discovered by a new motion picture camera, were the sensation of the final session of the American Astronomical Society today.

Nothing like them has ever been known. They are not motionless like earthly rainbows. Molten fire runs down both sides of the arch at speeds up to 100 miles a second. The arch appears at the apex of the rainbow, as if poured out of an invisible pitcher.

The rainbows were one of several equally spectacular discoveries of this new camera. Another was Roman candle fireworks of the sun. Balls of fire, some as large as the earth, arched upward 150,000 miles high.

There were "prairie fires." These were areas of flame thousands of miles wide and about 3,000 high. From their tops incandescent gases blew away at speeds of 50 miles a second, as if wind-driven.

Taxi Service Owner Murdered Near Loch Sheldrake Resort

Loch Sheldrake, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP)—The body of a man who state police said had been tentatively identified as Irving Ashkenas, 34, of Brooklyn, manager of a summer resort taxi service, was found sprawled in a dirt road today, shot five times.

A milk truck driver found the body just after dawn. It lay on its back, feet resting on the running board of a large automobile.

Sergeant Thomas J. Mangan of the state's Bureau of Criminal Investigation began questioning employees and guests of a nearby summer hotel, taxi drivers and others, and subsequently announced that three women in particular were being questioned.

Mangan said the victim was tentatively identified from a driver's license found in his wallet, and from business cards. These indicated, Mangan said, that the taxi line (Ashway Mountain Service) ran from New York to Sullivan county resorts.

Mangan also said that Ashkenas had been living with his wife and two children in a bungalow near Loch Sheldrake, but that he had taken them home to Brooklyn last Sunday.

David Margolis, a milk truck driver, found the body shortly after daylight, while making deliveries. It lay on its back in the road, but the feet rested on the running board of the car. Apparently the shooting had happened only a short time before, because rigor mortis had not set in.

Near Summer Hotel

The road ran past the grounds of Paramount Manor, a summer hotel. Margolis called Constable William Koller of Hurleyville and Deputy Sheriff Jay Laas, the same officials who last winter found the body of Charles "Chink" Sherman, a New York gangster, in a burned barn two miles from where the body was found today.

The constable and deputy notified state police, who began questioning employees and guests at the hotel. They were asked whether they had heard shooting or knew whether the dead man had brought a passenger to the hotel during the night.

The victim had been shot twice over the heart, from the left side, once back of the left ear, once in the left cheek, and once in the right side.

Sergeant Mangan said it appeared that the wounds on the left side had been inflicted by a gunman who opened the door of the car while the victim sat in the driver's seat.

The wound in the right side indicated that he might also have been shot by an assailant who sat with him in the car, Mangan said. His wallet contained no money, the officer reported.

Mangan is a member of the state police Bureau of Criminal Investigation, known as "Scotland Yard," and under his direction several fingerprints were taken from the car.

The scene of the shooting is near the training camp used in the past by Jim Braddock, world heavyweight champion.

Mr. Leski was a well and popularly known young man of downtown and the central part of the city. For a number of years he was connected with the Blue Sox Ball Club, when that team was enjoying county wide distinction as a first rate team. Known to many as "Patsy," he was for some time employed in the maintenance department of the West Shore Railroad. A member of the Immaculate Conception Church his funeral will be held there Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock when a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul. Immediately before the Mass a short service will be held at the late home, 122 Newkirk avenue, and will take place at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Calvary cemetery. Surviving in addition to his parents are two sisters, Mrs. William Skiller and Miss Mary Leski; six brothers, Frank, Peter, John, Walter, Theodore and Stefan, Jr.

John F. Sullivan, one of the oldest residents of downtown section of the city, died early this morning following an illness of several months. Mr. Sullivan, who resided at 122 Chambers street, was a native of Ireland. For a long period of years he was employed by the West Shore Railroad, tending the gates at the Broadway crossing and also for a time guarded the crossing at Lake Katara. He had been retired for the past five years. A daughter, Sarah, late wife of John Ostrander, preceded him in death about a year ago. His body is lying at the Henry J. Bruck Home for Funerals, 27 South avenue, from where the funeral will be held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Mary's Church, where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul at 9:30 a. m. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Calvary cemetery.

Use of Driveway Is Basis of Action in Supreme Court Here

An action brought by the Farmers National Bank of Hudson against Jacob Fink, Hudson undertaker, was argued in Supreme Court Friday. The bank seeks to compel the defendant to open up a driveway along his property to permit tenants of the bank residing on property in the rear of the Fink property to pass out to the street. The application was for a temporary injunction pending trial of the matter.

The property in question is on Green street, Hudson, and the bank is the owner of lands in the rear of the Fink property. The drive in question has been in use for some time but of late has been obstructed by Fink who it is claimed has set posts in the driveway and also parked a car in the drive to prevent entrance or egress. The bank claims that it should be permitted to use the drive and Fink contends that by opening the drive to the rear lots his business would be interfered with.

Plaintiff contends that it has a right to use the drive as a right of way to the street and Fink denies it. He claims that when he bought his property he entered into an agreement with the adjoining owner that they were to contribute a four foot strip each from their property for the common use of a drive for the two properties. Later the owner of the property sold the lot adjoining Fink and a new owner acquired it and also lots at the rear. The plaintiff alleges that the drive is for use of all of the property at the rear. Fink argues that the agreement only went to the owners of his lot and the one adjoining lot and that there is a proper entrance to the rear lots by other means where a driveway could be constructed.

Corbett Testifies $100,000 Bribe Was Offered to Fix Case

Corbett testified yesterday at District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan's removal hearing on charges of negligence, incompetence and questionable associations. The hulking, beetle-browed detective proved the most dramatic witness at the ten-day old hearing. Corbett has been described by Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine as "eccentric," by Geoghan as "crazy," by a police surgeon as a "pathological liar," by Dr. Menas S. Gregory, New York alienist, as a "narcopath whose statements need checking," and by Supreme Court Justice Erskine C. Rogers as a "straight-forward and convincing witness."

Special Prosecutor Hiram C. Todd, conducting the case against the Kings county district attorney, placed the ill and aging detective on the stand to repeat his story of bribe offers and grand jury irregularities.

Samuel Drunkman, obscure Brooklyn clerk, was murdered March 3, 1935, in the garage of his employers, the Luckman Brothers. The April grand jury did not indict anyone, but subsequently Harry and Meyer Luckman and Fred J. Hull were convicted of murder and still later three other men were convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice through bribery.

Active in Case.
From the inception of the case, Corbett was active in the search for witnesses and evidence. He went to Commissioner Valentine with a story of bribery which the commissioner testified he didn't believe in its entirety, yet considered worth investigating.

Corbett's report centered mainly on a conversation in which he quoted John Weinstein, an associate of the Luckmans, as saying $100,000 could be had for "laying off" the Drunkman case and on a second conversation in which he quoted Leo P. Byk as inviting him to "name his price."

One of the charges against Geoghan concerns the district attorney's associations with Byk, whom he described as "an exemplary family man," while Corbett characterized him as a "big shot slot machine racketeer" and "the district attorney's fixer."

Under protracted cross-examination by Lloyd Paul Stryker, Geoghan's counsel, last night Corbett admitted that he did not consider Weinstein's talk about $100,000 as a bribe offer because "I was getting information in a murder case and Weinstein was my informer and I got it, too."

Geoghan on Stand.
Geoghan himself was on the stand most of the day yesterday. The high point of his cross-examination came when he did not answer Todd's question as to where he obtained the cash to pay for his trip to Europe last summer. Objection by counsel prevented whatever answer he may have intended.

Todd asked the district attorney how much the trip cost, and drew the reply that the total was "about 1,300 and some odd dollars."

"Did Mr. Byk directly or indirectly furnish any part of that $1,300?" "Certainly not."

"Where did you get the cash?"

"I said the cash."

"I thought you said the check."

"I said the cash."

"Just then Striker broke in."

"Mr. Todd, you tried to poison this. Why don't you amend your charges in a fair way?"

"I have no desire to amend the charges."

The governor asked for proof, and Todd passed on to a report of Byk's criminal record.

The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday at 9 a. m. E. S. T., but Governor Lehman has expressed the hope that it will be completed Wednesday, and counsel for both sides said they would try to comply.

Elsie Janis' Auction Sale Planned Today

Tarrytown, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP)—Elsie Janis, famed stage actress, listed "everything for sale" today as she looked forward to the charity auction of her properties Monday that will launch her new career of "living to make others happy."

Two months ago the one-time "Sweetheart of the A. E. F.," who applied her stage talents to entertaining doughboys in the trenches, announced her resolve "to do something, something swell that would give me a reason for living."

Who Is The Legal Dog Enumerator In Town of Wawarsing

Some towns in the county find it difficult to find one dog enumerator but the town of Wawarsing apparently is an exception to the rule and apparently has two. The supreme court has been called upon to determine who is the legal dog enumerator and to see that he is paid for his services.

Before Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schrick on Friday came LeRoy Lounsbury, attorney for Preston Rippert of Wawarsing, asking that the County Auditor be directed to audit the bill of Rippert and pay him for his services. In opposition was Roscoe V. Elsworth, county attorney, who argued that Rippert was not the dog enumerator and that T. S. Fitzgerald who has held the office for several years was the authorized enumerator and that when the County Auditor audited the bill of Fitzgerald and directed the County Treasurer to pay it he did so correctly.

The matter came before Justice Schrick on an application for a peremptory writ of mandamus sought by Mr. Rippert to compel County Auditor Heaton to certify the list of dogs now before him and direct the County Treasurer to pay the bill.

County Attorney Elsworth opposed the application on the grounds the Agriculture and Markets law, which provides for the dog enumeration, says specifically that the appointment of a dog enumerator shall be made by the town board in December and that the list be filed in January. T. S. Fitzgerald for several years past was enumerator and was paid for his work. Mr. Elsworth held that Mr. Fitzgerald continued to be enumerator until a successor was appointed in the manner provided for by law.

No appointment of Mr. Rippert was made under the provisions of the statute he said and since the appointment was not made in December as provided by law, then the appointment of Fitzgerald held over until a successor was legally named.

Mr. Rippert's appointment was not valid he held because the law says appointment must be made in December and the town board did not appoint Mr. Rippert until January 13, 1936. In the meantime Mr. Fitzgerald completed his work and filed his list on January 15, 1936. The bill of Fitzgerald was in proper form, sworn to and the work had been done and it was audited by Mr. Heaton and the county treasurer paid it. The amount was $150.40 and it was paid on January 18, 1936.

In February another bill came in from Preston Rippert as dog enumerator. Mr. Elsworth said it was not in proper form and it has not been audited or paid.

On the other hand Mr. Lounsbury told the court that Mr. Fitzgerald was seeking to remain in office because he had once acted as dog enumerator. He held that Fitzgerald's "appointment" was not legal and that there had been no appointment for 1936. Mr. Lounsbury said the law provided that the dog enumerator "should be appointed" in December but when none was so appointed then the board was correct in its action in making an appointment in January. He asked that the writ be granted and that Mr. Rippert be paid. If the county auditor had been in error and had certified a bill for a man who had not been legally appointed that was no affair of the man who had been legally named by the town board. He asked that the court direct the audit and certification of the list and that Rippert be paid.

Mr. Lounsbury said that there was nothing in the papers to show that Fitzgerald had been "appointed" dog enumerator. He was "acting" as such.

The court gave a week to submit briefs.

Public Hearing on Milk Situation

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP)—A public hearing on the critical milk situation in New York state was assured today after Governor Lehman acted promptly to avert a threatened milk strike.

A few hours after a group of farmers meeting with distributors in Syracuse had asked his advice on how to avert a holiday, the governor announced he had instructed Agriculture Commissioner Peter C. Ten Eyck to call a public hearing on the question at the state Capitol next Saturday.

The farmers had voted to call a strike within a few hours in an effort to force higher prices and elimination of the classified price system, but withheld action pending the reply from the governor.

Before the governor's answer was received, Felix Piseck, secretary of the New York Milk Producers Federation, told a meeting of Onondaga county dairymen at Manlius, that a call for dairymen to withhold their milk from market would be issued at noon today.

"It is the earnest desire," the governor said, in his telegraphed reply to the farmers at Syracuse, "of both Commissioner Ten Eyck and myself that dairymen of New York receive a fair price—one that will compensate them for the increased cost of production caused by the unusual drought condition."

"Likewise, we strongly feel that the consumers interests should be protected."

Meanwhile, a "milk consumers committee" called an "adult milk strike" in New York city in protest against a rise of one cent a quart in the retail price of milk in the metropolitan area effective today.

Cabrero had already been named to the post but a high official of the ministry of war asserted "A definite decision has not yet been reached."

"The composition of the government represents all political forces that are on the various fronts fighting for a Democratic Republic," the cabinet's declaration said.

"The government tenders friendship to all countries and proclaims Pacifism. The government also manifests its unflinching purpose to maintain the integrity of its national territory."

The war ministry reported additional victories in Toledo province where strong columns of fascists have been attempting to cut a path to the provincial capital.

The advance has been halted, the ministry asserted, and government troops are consolidating their positions in trenches west of Talavera de la Reina, 40 miles northwest of Toledo.

Premier Largo Caballero called the new cabinet into session immediately after his appointment by President Manuel Azana. During the meeting, officials said, the situation on all fronts was discussed, campaign plans formulated and the war ministry, which the premier heads, instructed to put the measures into force at once.

Makes Application Here to Punish for Contempt of Court

An application to punish for contempt of court was made Friday before Justice Harry E. Schrick in special term in the matter of Nicholas Kaslich against Helen Kaslich, an action for divorce. Defendant sought to have the plaintiff punished for contempt of court because he has failed to pay her temporary alimony. She alleges that at the present time he is in arrears to the extent of $120 and in turn he alleges that he is unable to pay because of lack of funds. Francis T. Murray appeared for the defendant and asked that the court hold the plaintiff in contempt. Joseph Foreman who appeared for Joseph Aris, attorney of record, told the court that a memorandum would be submitted showing the earnings of the plaintiff and his expenses and that these figures would show that the plaintiff was unable to make the payments.

Some time ago Mrs. Kaslich brought action for a separation but this was later abandoned and after that Mr. Kaslich, who resides in Kingston, brought an action for divorce. In that action Mrs. Kaslich applied for temporary alimony and counsel fees pending trial of the divorce action and Justice Aldrich directed the plaintiff to pay $10 weekly. That order was made in October, 1935, and since then the payments have been made until May when they ceased. In the order of the court was also provision for payment of counsel fees. The counsel fees for defendant have been paid.

Mrs. Kaslich in her application to punish contempt of court for violation of the order of Justice Aldrich alleged that she is destitute, that she is ill and needs money for doctor's fees and that she has applied to the relief in Brooklyn where she now is, for aid, and contends that she was unable to get relief because of the fact that her husband is supposed to support her.

Plaintiff opposed the contempt application and pointed out the inability of plaintiff to make payments. Counsel stated he was willing to try the issue in October and said he would stipulate to try the case on the opening day. The defendant's counsel did not agree.

Bea-relief is a form of sculpture in which objects pictured project from the surface of the broader material.
